Course Objectives

The course is designed to introduce key strands of modern Indian political thought. Though the focus of the course is on individual thinkers, each unit is knit around a specific theme. Unit I introduces the architects of renaissance and reformation in 19th-century India; Unit II is meant to discuss the emergence of Indian nationalism and its various undercurrents; Unit III discusses differing visions on independent India, and Unit IV is about various strands of socialist thought. Overall, the course is meant to provide an overview of the themes and thinkers that constitute the essence of modern Indian political thought.

Learning Outcomes

The students will gain a thorough understanding of modern Indian political thought which emerged during colonial rule, the freedom struggle, and in independent India.

Course Objectives

The course introduces the philosophical, ethical and spiritual foundations of Gandhi's political thought. The course is meant to give insights into non-western categories of political theory and praxis such as swaraj, swadeshi, ahimsa, and satyagraha etc. as given by M.K. Gandhi. The objective is to develop a profound understanding of Gandhian philosophy, allowing students to critically analyse and reflect upon its relevance in addressing contemporary global issues.

Learning Outcomes

By the end of the course, students should be able to articulate the core tenets of Gandhian philosophy and assess its impact and significance in the modern socio-political and ethical landscape.

Semester – IICourse Objectives

The course delves into classical western political philosophy right from Greek antiquity up to Marxism. This course, thematically divided into four units, is focused on representative thinkers of each era. It discusses key thinkers in ancient, mediaeval and modern political philosophy and thus, seeks to develop a holistic perspective about the history of political ideas with reference to the political context in which these originated. Objective of the course is to make students aware of varied interpretations of themes in western political tradition.

Learning Outcomes

Students will gain a comprehensive knowledge of political philosophy in western tradition. The course will also help to generate inquisitiveness and curiosity about the state and the associated institutions such as government, law, justice, citizenship etc

Course Objectives

The course is designed to provide a comprehensive overview of the functioning of the constitution in independent India. The first unit is about the formation of the Constituent Assembly, the principles and philosophical foundations which shaped the making of the Constitution and the aims and the objectives enshrined in the Preamble to the Constitution. The next three units discuss- fundamental rights and duties, union legislature, union executive and the apex judiciary. The focus of the course is on the functional aspect of these institutions.

Learning Outcomes

The course will give a critical overview of the functioning of the democratic institutions in India. A discussion on fundamental rights and duties will ensure that students are aware of their citizenship rights and duties. The course will also prepare the students for careers in Human Rights, Law and Public Policy.

Course Objectives

The main objective of this course is to introduce the basic concepts in research methodology in Social science. This course addresses the issues inherent in selecting a research problem and discuss the techniques and tools to be employed in completing a research project. This will also enable the students to prepare report writing and framing Research proposals.

Learning Outcomes

The course will enable the students to understand the following:

1. Students who complete this course will be able to understand and comprehend the basics in research methodology and applying them in research/ project work. This course will help them to select an appropriate research design.
2. With the help of this course, students will be able to take up and implement a research project/ study.
3. The course will also enable them to collect the data, edit it properly and analyse it accordingly. Thus, it will facilitate students' prosperity in higher education. The Students will develop skills in qualitative and quantitative data analysis and presentation.
4. Students will be able to demonstrate the ability to choose methods appropriate to research objectives.
